Cooperative Home Care, Inc. Awarded Top Family Business 2017

ST. LOUIS, MO – Cooperative Home Care, Inc. is celebrating their 30th year of business, and now they have their Top Family Business 2017 award to celebrate as well. Highlights of their nomination included their “Serving & Celebrating in Our 30th Year” campaign, during which they’ve completed 30 local service projects to commemorate their 30th business year. They are also recognized for their ability to serve vulnerable groups like older adults and people of all ages with disabilities, despite the ongoing challenges of decreased state and federal funding, and increased regulations.

“Every generation of our family has uniquely contributed to the success and longevity of our company,” said Mitch Waks, CEO and Owner of Cooperative Home Care, Inc., including Cooperative Hospice. “My mother-in-law wanted to help people, my wife Ruth and I wanted to incorporate so that we could help more people in different ways, and my kids’ generation improves our effectiveness and efficiency through technology.”

Cooperative Home Care, Inc. was recognized by St. Louis Small Business Monthly at their Family Business Breakfast on June 21, with many family members and employees in attendance. They will also be featured in St. Louis Small Business Monthly’s July publication.

“Cooperative is a family-owned business that treats every employee like they are family. Home care and hospice can be daunting jobs, so the support of your colleagues is really important. This culture is why many of us have worked at Cooperative for over ten years,” shared Karen Mason, Director of Medicaid Services for Cooperative Home Care, Inc.
